

Structured, Smart, and Practical:

Why the FEN Clinical Programme Works for Every ED Nurse

In Emergency Nursing, we don't have time to waste. That's why every part of the Faculty of Emergency Nursing (FEN) Clinical Programme has been intentionally designed to deliver precise, relevant, and structured learning—exactly when nurses need it.

This isn't a loose collection of webinars. It's a carefully planned learning journey, crafted to support emergency nurses at every stage of their development. Whether you're a newly qualified nurse stepping into the emergency department for the first time, or a seasoned practitioner brushing up on specialist knowledge, the FEN Clinical Programme is designed to grow with you.

Designed with Purpose, Built for Real-World Use

With over 100 expertly delivered sessions, the Clinical Programme is arranged in a logical sequence. Nurses can start at CP001 and build up their confidence and capability through a structured pathway—or jump straight into the topics most relevant to their current practice. From airway assessment and pain management, to paediatrics, mental health, and major incidents—it's all there.

Each session connects to the next. This isn't ad hoc learning—it's layered education that builds understanding step by step.

Cradle to Grave, Always Relevant

Unlike traditional courses split by age group, FEN's Clinical Programme follows a lifespan approach. Most sessions apply across all age groups—because in the real world of ED, patients don't arrive neatly categorised.

You also won't find stand-alone lectures in anatomy or pathophysiology. Instead, that critical knowledge is woven into every session, making it easier to apply directly in clinical decision-making.

From Everyday Practice to Advanced Skills

Each webinar links to real-life scenarios and common ED presentations. Delivered by experienced emergency nurses across the UK and Ireland, every topic—whether Pain Assessment (CP020), Head Injuries (CP045) or Clinical Governance (CP073)—equips learners with skills they can use on their next shift.

One Programme. Many Possibilities.

- For Individuals: Learn at your own pace. Start at the beginning, or dip in as needed.
- For Educators: Use the sessions to design targeted teaching or support development plans.
- For Managers: Build induction plans or support revalidation with ready-to-use education.

The FEN Clinical Programme isn't just comprehensive—it's accessible, relevant, and ready to support nurses in delivering the very best care.
